

Camila Maranhã

Camila is a nutritionist with training in collective health (PhD). She is a professor at the Faculty of Nutrition at the Fluminense Federal University, and is currently a consultant for the Alliance for Tobacco Control and Health Promotion (ACT) Brazil. Camila is a member of the Alliance for Adequate and Healthy Diets in Brazil and of the Front for the Regulation of the Public-Private Relationship in Food and Nutrition, a network aimed to identify, discuss, publicize and monitor conflict of interest in the public-private relationship in food and nutrition in Brazil, which started at our WPHNA congress in Rio in 2012.