Eight contributors assess the value and importance of Michael Pollan in the month that his new book Cooked: a Natural History of Transformation is published

Michael Pollan

Advance chapter from his book published this month Cooked. A central theme is that cooking engages us with the four eternal elements of fire, water, air and earth

Geoffrey Cannon

The 'what I believe' series continues, with the proposal that dietetics is the mother of nutrition and we need now to return, spiral-wise, to become natural philosophers
